READY-MADE CLOTHING, Reeking with the noxious vapors of ancient and antedliuvian times. These things were brought forth from their hiding places, stacked upon the counters and advertised freely as NEW ARKIVALS OF FIRSH GOODS. That many people were victimized there is no doubt, but a large majority of the people of Washington and its environs are "up to snonf." They know "a hawk from a handman," and are not slow or at all secretive in expressing their opinions. We get our inspiration from them—our knowledge also of the base methods employed to filch the dollar, earned by honest toll, without rendering a fair equivalent therefor. We took the tide at its flood—closed our doors and marked down our goods to meet the conditions as they must exist on and after January 1, 1895. We have had nine years of successful business in the District of Columbia, and can therefore afford the loss which the next three months must necessarily entail. Indeed, we are glad to give

SUGAR PLANTERS' SECESSION.

Gov. Foster Thinks It Will Unify the NEW ORLEANS, La., October 1, 1894. Governor Foster arrived in New Orleans on Saturday evening and stated in an interview that the candidacy of Mr. Price. democrat, in the third district, had excited the greatest possible enthusiasm. He thought that the parish of St. Mary, the governor's own native parish, would and a compared the parish would and a compared to the democracy. In general, it was the governor's opinion that the scession of the planters would unify the democracy, and create a better and firmer feeling in the party throughout the state.

The convention represented all factions of the party, and this fact indicates that in the interests of party harmony the differences that for the past ten years have convulsed the district have been healed. It was decided to appoint a committee of 44 to supervise the campaign in the district and the first meeting of the commains was set for Saturday. October 6.

the district and the first meeting of the campaign was set for Saturday, October 6, at St. John the Baptist.

On the 29th also the Leonard faction of the republican party in the first congressional district held a meeting in a hall on Canal street in New Orleans, in which the nomination of H. P. Kernochan was developed that of 150 present 125 were colthe nomination of H. P. Kernochan was denounced. Out of 150 present 125 were colored. The meeting adopted resolutions, asserting a claim to the regular republican district convention, and that at which the candidacy of Mr. Kernochan was ratified a few days since was declared not to represent the party at all. F. O. Minor, formerly employed as a bookkeeper in the United States mint, and A. H. Leonard, formerly candidate in the state for governor, made speeches.

ernor, made speeches. The democrats of the second district have not, as yet, determined upon the man who will lead them in the approaching contest. Ex-United States Senator B. F. Jonas is now mentioned as the only available candidate. Jonas was collector of the port of date. Jonas was collector of the port of New Orleans some years ago, and while the leaders of the party refuse to authorize the statement popular rumor indicates that his nomination will be made in a few days. There have been no nominations made by the democrats in either the first or the second distracts, but the present congressional incumbents announce their willingness to accept the candidacy. General Adolph Meyer has represented the first district for two terms in the House of Representatives. He is a lawyer, merchant and planter,) affiliated with the state ad-ministration and favorably known through ministration and lavorably known through-out the district. Mr. Andrew Price, who will probably he the candidate in the third district, announced his intention to run on the 26th of September. Mr. Price has been in Congress for two years. He is now in the city, and expressed himself as confident of victory.

Mr. C. J. Boatner was renominted on September 21 in the fourth district, and is now conducting a vigorous campaign in the northern part of the state. He spoke at Monroe on the 25d, announcing that the revolt of the planters could be productive of no good, and expressing his belief that within a short time they would return to the democracy. within a short time they would return to the democracy.

Col. S. M. Robinson is a candidate for re-election in the sixth district, with good prospects of succeeding. There has been as yet no rival candidate brought forward against him by the republicans. Mr. Boat-ner, also in his district, has as yet met with no convestion.

In the fifth district, formerly represented by Mr., now Senator, Blanchard, there are two candidates for the democratic nomination. Mr. H. T. Ogden and Ir. J. Watson are both making an active canvass for the dignity. Advices from the district indicate that Mr. Ogden will succeed. At a recent session of the East Ger-man United Brethren conference, at Leb-anon, Pa., a resolution was passed to pro-hibit, "wherever introduced in our church, the traditional character of Santa Claus at our Christmas festivities."

He will be assisted, moreover by several earnest laymen and pastors, and as rapidly as possible it is desired to bring into the movement all the officers and teachers of the District. The Sunday Teachers' Club is one of four fraternities established by the American Society of Religious Education, and has for its object to elevate the office of Sunday school teacher by securing a better preparation for those who have assumed or may hereafter assume its duties. The club provides a two years' course of study and practice, part of which bears on the Sunpractice, part of which bears on the Sunday school lesson. This course has been before the country for nearly six years and has been pursued in whole or in part by nearly 10,000 persons. It was arranged under the supervision of an able committee of educators and has been most heartly commended by those who have examined it.

people in the world," said Albert F. Trenwaite of Sacramento at the Riggs House last night. Mr. Trenwaite spent a number of years in China and left the country just previous to the declaration of war. "They are experts in preventing waste and making a little go a great way. The national diet consists of rice, beans, vegetables and millet. They eat quantities of fish, but only enjoy meat on festival occasions. Two cents a day can secure good, wholesome food in abundance for a laborer, and many families don't expend more than that for their daily necessities. This is made possible by the perfection to which the Chinese have brought the science of cooking. Absolutely nothing is wasted. Only the smallest portions of meals are left and the dogs and cats of Chinamen show what starvation rations they get. They are not particular regarding their palates. Cattle which die of disease are cut up and sold just the same as those which are slaughtered. The cooking uterrils are all made with exceedingly thin bottoms in order that the contents may be cooked with the least expenditure of fuel. There is always a fuel famine in China. It consists mostly of staiks and roots of crops and the children gather them. They pick up every straw, weed and leaf. ble by the perfection to which the Chinese them. They pick up every straw, weed and leaf.

"In the fall and winter boys climb the trees and beat off the leaves, which are gathered up for fuel, and manure is used copiously, professional manure gatherers going all over the country. When you give a Chinaman your old clothes, their usefulness fairly begins, and a Chinese woman will exercise economy in her dress that would make a Mennonite stare. Soap is an unknown quantity among the poor Chinamen, and water is too valuable to waste for washing the skin, consequently, the Chinese men, and water is too valuable to waste for washing the skin, consequently, the Chinese lower classes are the dirtiest intelligent people on the face of the earth. Where there are two rooms, both are lighted by the same lamp placed in a hole in the dividing wall between the apartments. To do something with nothing is the ultima thule of a Chinaman's desire, and he comes pretty near accomplishing it, I can tell you."

"A society has recently been organized in Massachusetts that will, I believe, have considerable effect on our future policy in dealing with immigration," said Robert Dickinson of Holyoke at the Arlington yesterday. "It is known as the Immigration Restriction League, and its membership comprises such men as Francis A. Walker, Professor Richmond Mayo Smith, Leverett Saltonstall, Henry Parkman, Professor N. S. Shaler, William E. Barrett and others representing all classes of advanced New England thought. It is not the object of the association to advocate the exclusion of laborers or other immigrants who are fit to become good citizens, but to create, by pub-lic meetings and the establishment of branch societies all over the country, a na-tional demand for the exclusion of elements undesirable for citizenship or injurious to our national character and institutions. There will be no ruggestions made as to a change in the immigration laws, and there will be no advocacy of any one theory or hobwill be no advocacy of any one theory or hob-by, but there will be a constant and vigor-ous effort to keep the public informed of all facts relating to immigration and of all methods by which it is hoped a reform in the system of immigration may be reached. It is probable that a headquarters of the league will be established here in Washing-ton early in 1895. That is the present in-tertion, at any rate."

"No one can conceive the tortures of a nan who suffers from real thirst," said 8. R. Jacoby of Ouray, Colo., at the St. James yesterday. "I underwent the awful experience once, but can hardly convey a hint of what I suffered, although it is vividly impressed on my mind. There are no words in English or Spanish to tell the story, and I know no other languages. It was in Wyoming, in 1883. With two companions was doing a little prospecting, and we had bad luck. One morning I made up my mind to try a range of hills about thirty miles away, across what seemed to be a well-verdured valley, and my chums refus-ing to go further on what had proven to be a wild goose chase, said good-bye and started back for Cheyenne. I started off, and hadn't gone more than five miles when I came to desert land. There was not a stalk of vegetation in sight. The ground was covered with lava and scoria that had rotted under the suns of a thousand cen-turies. I never imagined that the desert was more than a few miles across, and at there was a haze hanging over it I went straight chead. I only had a small canteen, such held brandy instead of water. It was before noon when I began my journey over that waste. Before night my horse had fallen, and I was suffering pangs of agony. I had no brandy left, and everywhere was desolation as dry as chalk I of agony. I had no brandy left, and everywhere was desolation as dry as chalk. I killed my horse and drank some of his blood. Then I threw myself down and slept. No opium eater craving for his drug ever had such horrible dreams. They awoke me, and I got up and staggered on in the darkness. All the demons of pain in the universe seemed to have settled themselves right between my shoulder blades, and were holding a carnival. Ten thousand million red-hot needles, with rusted sides, were playing in and out through my tongue, and the top of my head felt as if some giant had hold of it and was trying to pull it off. I couldn't cry out, because my tongue was numb and useless from the pain. When rorning came I just beheld the outlines of a wagon in the distance.
with a superhuman effort I gave a shriek and then I knew no more. When I rewith a superhuman effort I gave a shriek and then I knew no more. When I re-gained consciousness I was in a bunch of hay near a fire, and two or three men were looking at me. I learned later on that my scream had been heard by a party of pros-pectors, who were skirting the desert in order to make a short cut to the Montana cattle trail, and that at first they thought it was some wild animal, but one of the party insisted on a search, as he had heard at the places following:

October 5—At First Congregational Church, water, and plenty of it, since." "A notorious character named Annie Gould was arrested in New Orleans the other day and fined for keeping a disorderly said Frank Hamilton of Shreveport at Wormley's yesterday. "She was a roodoo woman, and the developments connected with her arrest showed to what great degree the lower classes of the south are governed by superstition. The woman was a mulatto and had a cabin on Monro street near Royal. The orgies conducted in this place annoyed the respectable neighbors,and upon their complaint the place was raided. The policemen found a regular abode of voodoo worship, if it can be called such, and selzed all the horrible objects used in the rites. A human skull, covered with tinfoil, was on an altar in one corner and it was surrounded with human bones, snakes, toads and other reptiles and several dogs' skulls. There were numerous candles on the altar. All these things had some particular part in the ceremony the woman performed when she was employed to put a curse on somebody, and hundreds of letters were found from people who wanted their especial enemies pursued by evil. It was shown at the trial that the curse was established by putting the name of the person under ban upon a slip of paper and placing it under a jar full of snakes and frogs. abode of voodoo worship, if it can be call-

"The voodoo woman and her votaries danced around this, mumbling incantations, and at their conclusion the person selected for a victim was believed to be doomed to misfortune and misery. The Gould woman was feared by numbers of people whose intelligence should have made them know better, and many of the lower classes were absolutely governed by her. There are many more of her class in New Orleans, as well as in other cities in the south. Some of them profess to be able to place a charm upon a person that will preserve the individual from detection if he should commit a crime. This species of voodooism is responsible for a large amount of petty thieving, as well as more serious crimes, committed by the ignorant young negroes of the south. The colored boy is a natural coward, but when he thinks he is 'charmed' the south. The colored boy is a natural coward, but when he thinks he is 'charmed' against being found out and sent to the calaboose he becomes a most daring and courageous criminal. If they are caught they will believe in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred that they did something to keep the 'charm' from working, and will never for an instant question the efficacy of the voodoo, providing the instructions are carried out."

To Have Charge of the Naval Exhibit. Secretary Herbert has designated Commander Geo. J. Train to take charge of the naval exhibit at the Atlanta exposition next year.

ALEXANDRIA AFFAIRS IN HOTEL CORRIDORS THE FREEDMAN'S HOSPITAL

Appointments and Supervision Still With the Secretary of the Interior.

An Opinion by the Assistant Attorney General on the Subject Sent to the Commissioners.

The Secretary of the Interior has notified the Commissioners that the supervision of the appointments to and the general supervision of the Freedman's Hospital is still with the Secretary of the Interior.

This opinion, which was rendered by the assistant attorney general, was called forth by the applications of the attorneys of Dr. Charles B. Purvis, late surgeon in charge of Freedman's Hospital, who made application to the Commissioners for the recognition of Dr. Purvis as surgeon in charge of Freedman's Hospital, notwithstanding his resignation. They based their claim on the act of March 3, 1893, which they argued transferred the power of the Secretary of the Interior to make changes and appoint

The opinion of the assistant attorney general on the subject is as follows:

"It appears that on February 15, 1894, Dr. Charles B. Purvis, surgeon-in-chief of the Freedman's Hospital, tendered, in writing, his resignation, of such office to the Secretary of the Interior, stating, among other things, that 'I infer that you desire my resignation as surgeon-in-chief of the Freedman's Hospital."

"On the 27th of September, 1894, a letter, signed by John M. Langston and George A. King, as attorneys for Dr. Purvis, was addressed to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, requesting said Commissioners to recognize Dr. Purvis as surgeon-in-chief of said hospital, notwithstanding his previous resignation, and presenting as ground for such action the statute of March 3, 1893 (27 stat., 537), by which, it is claimed, that the power of the Secretary to make appointments or removals in said hospital is taken away from him and conferred upon said Commissioners.

"The statute in question has received a different construction in the Interior Department; see anrual report of the Secretary of the Interior for 1893, page 78; it being held that the act in question only transferred the supervision of expenditures to the Commissioners, 'leaving the supervision of the appointments to, and the geteral administration of the institution, as heretofore, with the Secretary of the Interior.'

"This view of said act has also been adopted by the Attorney General in his opinion of August 31, 1893.

"It would seem, therefore, that the question was fairly settled, and the position of Mesers. Langston and King is not well taken, and I therefore advise you that the act in question does not in any manner

"In the letter of said attorneys to the Commissioners of the District the following paragraph appears: "We are informed by statements contained in the daily newspapers that Assistant Attorney General Hall of the Interior Department has given an official opinion in accordance with the views herein submitted."

"I desire to say in connection with this statement that if the newspapers so reported it was through error, for I have not had this question before me for consideration until the present time. On July 14, 1804, I did submit an opinion to the Secretary of the Interior to the effect that under said act the Secretary no longer had control of property purchased for said hospital.

"This view, you will observe, is consistent with the original construction of said statute, as noted in the foregoing, and not inconsistent with the opinion expressed herein."

EXAMINING THE STYLES. The Fall Opening at McKnew's Large ly Attended.

One of the events of today of especial interest to the fair sex was the annual pening exhibit of the latest Paris and American styles at W. H. McKnew's. This exhibit will continue for the next two days. Ever since the war and through the changes of the firm up to the regime of R. H. Tayor, and then to that of his successor, Mr. W. H. McKnew, the house has been noted as one of the leading coat, cloak and suit louses of the country. The store presented houses of the country. The store presented a most animated scene today, the many visitors growing enthusiastic over the vogues of the coming season. It has been said that fashionable women have greater difficulty in appearing graceful and stylish in winter costumes on account of their having to secure comfort by muffling up when the frost is in the air. It looks as if Mr. McKnew must have set out to refute this notion, for the elegance and shapeliness of the coats and capes shown by him liness of the coats and capes shown by him today demonstrate that women can be comfortable and stylish at the same time.

All the various departments of ladies' furnishings are participating in the opening ceremonies. Mr. McKnew recently added bay windows to the D street entrance and has otherwise improved the interior and has otherwise improved the interior and ex-terior of his establishment. The "opening" will be continued all the week, and it is hardly necessary for us to suggest going as very few ladies who follow the fashion ould resist it were they to try.

Bid for an Electric Light Plant. The La Roche Electrical Company of Philadelphia has submitted to the Navy Department the lowest bid for the electric light plant at the League Island navy yard, light plant at the League Island navy yard, at the sum of $8,875, which comes $1,125 within the amount appropriated by Congress. The bid was received half an hour after the time allowed for the opening, but this was due to the lateness of the train bearing the special messenger of the company. The messenger telegraphed this fact to the department before the hour expired, and the bid will probably be accepted, being over a hundred dollars less than the next highest.

Arrested for Counterfeiting. The treasury secret service is informed the arrest yesterday at Poplar Bluffs, Mo., of J. C. Wilson and Lucien Hubbard for counterfeiting. These men were cep-nected with the Hafley gang, recently rested at Ashley, Ill., for counterfeiting the Grant and Manning twenty-dollar notes.
